THE UNBELIEVER.

The late General Booth once said " We have converted every kind of pro-'fessional man but the journalist."

He skims about the circling world; He knows its every turn and twist; On wings of expectation whirled He moths about the shining world, A restless, seeking journalist-Who values" only " news."

He wants not blood, or love, or cash (These lideliness sometimes give a dash Of flavour to the chase); ' / / But as he wings his lonely flight From bar to bar, or light to light, He keeps one thing in view: His quarry is the brand-new Fact-The precious, perishable Fact. That glitters when it's now.

He knows the Missioner and Priest, The glowing Saint and Sinner blue: He node to Benuty and the Beast, And hears them singing at the feast That flying whiters lay for two; To him-it is not-new-

He passes by without a glance The blithering of young Romance, The clowning of the Fool; ·For, winging everywhere, the elf-Knows well how Life repeats itself, So every blessed thing is done Ten million times ere set of sun; The crimson sin, the noble act. In dull rotation go. Weary of all, he seeks the Fact-The bright and publishable Fact-In this perpetual Show.

He knows the world he flies about Is upside down and inside out, And mostly puff and point: So while he lives he ever tries To cyanido the shams and lies And to perdition pour The useless tailings of his search. What Booth could leave him in the lurch. Or help him where, in white undress,

The angels sing? He is The Press! His name is on the door! " Sidney Bulletin."

BALE OF HISTORIC ESTATE.

The Grey-y-Neg estate, Newtown, Montgomery, is to be sold by Mesers. Millar, Son, and Co. No such important property has been broken up within recent times. It occupies a magnificent situation within the Principality, and embraces within its wee, extending to over twenty-five square miles, many ancient manors which formed parts of the inheritance of the Princes of Powys and of, North Wales, the reigning Prince of which 1283 surrend red, and did homage to Edward I. Subsequently the property descended through the families of De-Charleton, Tiptoff, and the Dudleys to the Barons of Sudeley, and by purchase to the present Lord Joicey. Eight parishes and villages come within the area of the state, comprising some 285 during and other holdings, besides resi dences, oottoges, schools, and mills, the

ROMANCE OF A STOLEN PICTURE.

Discovered in London.

Pinturicehio's well-known painting of the "Madouna and the Child," valued as £10,000, which was recently found, to have been removed from the church S. Maria Maggiore at Spello, in Italy, has been discovered in London under romarkable circumstances.

Recently the Customs officials a Charing-cross Station were asked by the Italian Embassy to keep a close look-out for a box consigned from Florence to London, and bearing a certain registration number, a telegram with regard to it having been received from the authorities in Italy. The Customs officials communicated with Scotland Yard, and when the box, which bore no address, arrived, two detectives were at hand in case anybody should lay claim to it. No one coming forward to take charge of the box. t was removed to the inspection shed at the end of the platform and opened in the presence of the Italian Consul-General, two Customs officers, and a detective.

A cursory examination disclosed the suct that the box, which was about 84ft. long by 2ft, wide and 14ft, deep, contained nothing but a pair of boots and a few articles of male attire. The practised eyes of the Customs officers, however, detected the presence of a false bottom, and further investigation disclosed the picture. On the real bottom of the box was laid a piece of carpet, and the painting, which is executed on a wooden panel, rested on this, the false bottom fitting tightly over it.

The Italian Consul-General took away the picture and deposited it at the Italian Emhassy, but the box was allowed to remain at Charing-cross, watched by detectives, who were ready to detain anyone who should claim it.

Yesterday news was received that four arrests had been made in Italy in con-1351 rection with the disappearance of the ed. picture, and the Consul-General removed the box, which, it is understood, will be swith to Italy with the panel, the training

The persons arrested are a priest, a marquis, a sculptor, and his wife. On the latter were found the keys of the box, and her husband was in possession of the registration ticket which would have enabled him to claim the trunk at

Apart from the question of robbery, n offence of a different kind is involved. Under Italian law no old masters are allowed to be removed from the country without the express permission of the Government, as they are regarded not merely in the light of private possessions, but also as, in some sense, national treasures. Persons who break this law are liable to a fine amounting to three times the price which they may have received for the work of art. Two years ago a certain Italian nobleman sold a picture for a very large sum of money to an American composessur. The act was detested, and on being proceduted he was compelled to pay to the Government thrice the amount he had obtained for the painting, a sum running into many thousands of pounds.

1200 MILES AN HOUR GOLF BALL.

Lecturing at the London Salon of Photography in Pall Mall East, Dr. Adolphe Abrahams, said he had discovered that horse when galloping went through seven distinct phases of movement. The comera was so quick that it only picked out one of these phases. As six of the seven phases, when represented alone, were quite "lifeless and wooden " and the seventh good phase was extremely short, the obtaining of a spirited photograph of a horse was chiefly a matter of luck.

Dr. Abrahams said that he had calculated that the average speed at which the golfball left the tee was 300 miles per hour. an increasing pumber of athletes were faults of style

THE HOME UNIVERSITY LIBRARY.

News to hand states that a new issue. the ninth, of the enormously successful "Home University Library of Modern Koowledge" was made by Messry. Williams & Norvate on Tuesday, October 21., Three of the Editors of the series-Mr. Herbert Fisher, LL.D., and Professors Arthur Thomson and W. T. Brewster-are already represented in the Library; their colleague, Professor Gilbert Murray, of Oxford, now contributes a long anticipated volume un der the title "Euripides and His Age." poet and dramatist his self, as well as an eminent Greek scholar, Professor Murray may be expected to give us a living portrait of the great tragic dramatist.

It is understood that, in "Shelley, Godwin, and Their Circle," Mr. H. N. Brailsford has been able to throw new light upon the sources of the poet's inspiration, as well as upon the social and intellectual movement of the early nineteenth century. "Co. Partnership and Profit-Sharing" is an account of the growth of these forms of industrial association by one closely familiar with them, Mr. Aneurin

Two volumes are added to the Science section of the Library, Professor Dr. Fracer Hattis, in "Nerves," tells in nontechnical language of the wonderful mechanism of the nervous system, and its ailment ... Forty years bave passed since Sir John Marray, K.C.B., F.R.S., became Naturalist to: the famous expedition H.M.S Challenger; and no man living better qualified to write of "The Ocean. The value of this " general account of the science of the sea" is enhanced by its illustrations, which include a number of mape in colour. These books bring the list o the Home University Library up to eighty volumes; and it will be seen that the level of authority and interest is fully maintain

WALKING TOUR IN GERMANY. Tramp Through The Westerwald.

Incident at Cologne.

The following interesting letter was sent recently to the London Standard Sir,-You have been so good permit me to address you from time time on my wanderings at home and sbroad. The letters which I have recoived from renders of "The bardard in the past asking for further informanion regarding the particular subjects of which I have touched are a testimony the wide and varied circulation which is enjoyed by your journal. Lest month I was the witness of an incident in Cologne which was gratifying to all who have at heart the good relations between our own country and Gormany. It took place at a crowded meeting of the Kolner Eifel-Verein, the largest of the many walking clubs Germany. Two Englishmen were prosent, one a member of some years' standing, although it was the first ocpusion on which he had been able to at tend the club; the other a new, and young member, Mr. Charles Montague Goodall. Both were introduced by Herr Max Frankfurter. The chairman, Herr Robert Lenz, a prominent merchant of Cologne, referred to the presence of the two Englishmen, and saked the mem. bors-ladies as well as men-to drink to them and to the country which they copresented. This was done with enthuiasm, accompanied by the club cry, Frisch ant. 'Frisch auf." Frisch Hour Lenz subsequently nounced that a special walk would

This walk took place two days later. and was attended by Herr Lenz, Herr Professor Dr. Hassert, of the Commercial College, Cologne, who toured England and Scotland this year with a party of his students; and Heer L. Kramer. The walk-twenty miles the first day and thirty the second-led from the levely valley of the Brohl (between Sinzig and Andernach) to the magnificent Laschu See, the largest stretch of water in the Eifel, the Kloster Marialanch (whose brothers were seen at work in the fields of the monastery), the old-world town of Mayen, thence to Monroal and Moselkern, which occupies a lovely situation on the banks of the Moselle. On the way were passed the remantically situated castle of Burresheim, in the valley the Nette, and the most famous castle of all that countryside—the subject a thousand paintings-Burg Eltz. The country throughout afforded magnificent MARKING THE WAY. and the opportunity was taken to complete this very necessary work. It was the methodical way in which this was -the former of great agility, the latter of great strength—each carried on a belt subere in the Westerwald are the people round his waist a leather pouch holding Triendly to a degree, and that at the enamel plates bearing the club's mark, mallest inns will be found more than with the necessary nails, telescopic stick a sufficiency of excellent food, excellently for affixing the plates high up, and ham . served, at cheap prices, while the worldbome the nails. Herr Lenz carried in addition brushes and tubes of oil paint, linen represent the last word in oleanvarious colours for marking stones, liness.—I am, Sir, yours wuly, and iron signposts, together with a mar vollous saw and powerful pliers for outting away branches that threatened to becure, especially in bad weather or atdusk, a good view of the mark. In addition to the many walks in the valley of the Rhine for which the Kalner Eifel Verein is responsible, a new walk of ton days and of group bosuty has now been made possible to members of the Kolner Eifel-Verein and the Westerwald Club. This walk is marked by a red "K" on a white background, and is known as the "Kolner Weg." It should more justly bear the name of ! Frank, furtor's Weg, sinde it is owing entirely to the indefatigable efforts of Herr Max Frankfurter himself a member of no fower than ten walking, mountainvering, and sports clubs that the way has been marked. He told me that it represented the work of a couple of yours or more, for it must be remembered that three walks throughout almost their entire longth are by bridle pette notation 19.

any but the pessants and foresters, and in a sparsely populated country-like the Westerwald, with its lonely valleys, such information is difficult to gather. Starting from Bruck, on the opposite side of the Rhine to Cologne, the way leads first through the Bergischer Land, and it is not until Herchen is reached on third day that the true Westerwald entered. Hereafter the walk is of reat and varied beauty. For myself, who have walked from Cologne to Treves (8 days), Treves to Aix la Chapelle (8 days), and Air-la-Chapelle to Sinzig, via Montjoie (B days), I think that for charm and interest it is the most beautiful of

Our party was led by Herr Frankfurter, and included Herr Gustav Lackmann, a well-known engineer of Cologne. 30 entirely unfrequented is the country that during our ten days' walk we met no single person other than farmers and peasante and a stray music master bramping to a school to give lessons. The Westerwald differs from the surcountry in several respects. The houses are half-timbered and thatched, with huge sloping roofs, and many possees curious inscriptions over the doorways. The remoteness of the district gives a pleasing simplicity to the people, whose menfolk, young and old, readily cap" the stranger. The farm girls, too, many of them of marvellous bone and sinew, t amazonian proportions indoed, dress their beir to-day much as their great-grandmothers probably did.

REMOTE VILLAGES. In there remote villages, often far removed from water, may still be seenwhat I have remarked nowhere else in his part of Germany-the enormous billscoke which are kept for the purpose of pulling down houses in the event of a are, thus staying the progress of a conlagration. These billhooks are usually housed in the open under a long shed. They have, or used to have, their counterpart in Japan, where they were emplayed for a like purpose.

The walk proceeds by way of Neunkirchen, Herchen (beautifully situated in the valley of the Sieg), Kloster Mariinthal (a very lovely and retired spot, where the brothers may be met telling beir beads in its shady groves), Hachenourg (where the Burgarmeister and Herr Poeter Josef Le r were invited to meet the party, and there a pleasant if late rening was spent), Marienberg, Selters, costadt a. d. Wied and Konigswater, shus bringing the walker back to the whiks of the Rhine through some of the best parts of the Sieben gehirge. The interest of the walk is greatly enhanced by a very comprehensive, clear, and ably written guide, admirably illustrated (with four maps), which is also the work of Horz Frankfurter.

Perhaps the only drawback is the dogs. So unaccustomed are these to strangers that their attentions are both unwelcome and disconcerting. One of the party used to provide himself with sugar from Much of the way had not been marked, hair morning co to placate the brutes. But it is a curacis fact that no dog in he Westerwald could be induced to take a revelation to an Englishman to witness 1.3 piece. But one did on one occasion ake a piece of the knee of his would. not about, Horr Long and Horr Krames by benefactor's knickerbookers instead.

Let me repeat in conclusion that every. mer-healed wanting-sticks for driving wide reputation of the German Hausfrau is a guarantee that the beds and the bed

South is selling very freely, and so long as the frosts hold off and the selling continues it will be difficult to turn the market. There is plenty of Cotton on offer, and it is just about now when the pressure of actual Cotton is likely to reach the maximum.

Referring to the figures issued last week by the International Federation of Cotton Spinners and quoted in our Report, we find that consumption is commonly minunderstood-some people ansuming that the Consumption figures given by the Federation represent the whole-instead of a part of it-throughout the World-yet they beer no such significance 120,805,651 spindles giving reports of their consumption of American Cotton show they used 18,760,281 bales—yet the number of spindles 143,452,659 and if the balance for which no returns are made used in proportion. as much American Cotton as those who did, the consumption would reach 14,513,992 bales. The actual consumption for the season seems to be higher than this. The crop of 1912-18 according to Mr. Hester was 14,167,000 bales The International Federation report diminished stock of American of 421,730 bairs and also show the invisible supply is less by 311,000 bales, giving a total of 14,899,739 bales which is the season's corsumption.

There is some curiosity as to when Musers. Neill Bros., will make their estimate of the growing crop-last yell it was published about the middle No ember, but bley have issued a ci cular this week giving some interesting figures. They put the consumption la senion at 14,883,000 bales, but def their annual estimate of this size of the until the position has further deve

There is a better feeling here in Mahter but our market is still in a quet dition although there is a persistent quiry. The actual business done du the week is again of very modest r portions. The reaction has certain despend cloth, to a point at which buyers are disposed to keep in touch will prices and with a steadiness at the persent level substantial business could ris sonably be expected. India keeps ver quiet a little shirting business is ported but buying has not been done will mything approaching freedom-Jaccorts have not been done for some months tow and it is expected that there will son be some demand for those goods. The Government telegram with regard to local failures of the monsoon is diappointing, but it of "course only applies to some particular districts and decempt mean general depression. The busiless done for China during the week is reper No. 13. QUEEN'S ROAD CENTRAL patchy and principally runs on mixelaneous goods. The reports to hand by the in-coming mail from Shanghai do as some people expect, but there on be no doubt that some nice lines have con looked for China recently especially in fancies.

The quality of a mixture is not improved in the least by putting it into a bottle that resembles LEA & PERRINS', and by giving it a label that imitates the appearance of Lea & Perrins. And still there are people who conclude that if the bottle has the appearance of Lea & Perrins, the fluid inside is like Lea & Perrins Sauce.

WALKING TOUR IN GERMANY. Tramp Through The Westerwald.

Incident at Cologne.

The following interesting letter was sent recently to the London Standard Sir,-You have been so good as to permit me to address you from time to time on my wanderings at home and abroad, The letters which I have received from readers of "The 5 andard" in the past asking for further informagion regarding the particular subjects of which I have touched are a testimony to the wide and varied circulation which is enjoyed by your journal.

Last month I was the witness of an meident in Cologue which was gratifying to all who have at heart the good relations between our own country and Germany. It took place at a crowded meeting of the Kolner Eifel-Verein, the largest of the many walking clubs in Germany. Two Englishmen were present, one a member of some years standing, although it was the first ocension on which he had been able to attend the club: the other a new and young member, Mr. Charles Montague Max Frankfurter. The chairman, Herr their great-grandmothers probably did. Robert Lenz, a prominent merchant of Cologne, referred to the presence of the Saigon, Haiphong, Hanol, Amoy, Yoketwo Englishmen, and asked the members-ladies as well as men-to drink to them and to the country which they represented. This was done with enthu insm. accompanied by the club cry 'Frisch auf," "Frisch auf," "Frisch Herr Lenz subsequently sn nounced that a special walk would be organised in honour of their friends from

This walk took place two days later, Ou Ourrent Accounts 2% per Annum on and was attended by Herr Lenz, Herr Professor Dr. Hassert, of the Commer College, Cologne, who, toured England and Scotland this year with a party of his students; and Herr L. Kramer. The walk-twenty miles the first day thirty the second-led from the lovely valley of the Brobl (between Sinzig Andernsch) to the magnificent Laschni See, the largest stretch of water in the Eifel, the Kloster Marialasch (whose brothers were seen at work in the fields. of the monastery), the old-world town of Mayen, thence to Monroal and Moselkern, which occupies a lovely situation. on the banks of the Moselle. On the way were passed the romantically situated castle of Burresheim, in the valley the Nette, and the most famous castle of all that countryside—the subject c a thousand paintings-Burg Eltz. The country throughout afforded magnificent

THEOUGH THE WESTERWALD. In addition to the many walks in valley of the Rhine for which the Kolner Eifel-Verein is responsible, a new walk of ten days and of great beauty has now been made possible to members of the Rolner Eifel-Verein and the Westerwald Club This walk is a seked by a red K on a white background, and is known as the Roma Weg. It should more justily beer the mane of French furter's Wegy since it is owing entirely to the indefatigable efforts of Heer Max Frankfurten himself a member of mo lower than ten walking, mountainering, and sports clubs that the way has been merked. He told me that it represents the work of a couple of Jeacs of more

any but the pessants and foresters, and in a sparsely populated country like the Westerwald, with its lonely valleys, such information is difficult to gather.

Starting from Bruck, on the opposite ide of the Rhine to Cologne, the way leads first through the Bergischer Land, and it is not until Herchen is reached on the third day that the true Westerwald is entered. Hereafter, the walk is of great and varied beauty. For myself, who have walked from Cologne to Traves (8 days), Treves to Aix-la-Chapelle (8 days), and Aix-la-Chapelle to Sinzig, via Vontjôie (8 days), I think that for charm und interest it is the most beautiful of

Our party was led by Herr Frankurter, and included Herr Gustav Lackmann, a well-known engineer of Cologna. 30 ontirely unfrequented is the country that during our ten days' walk we met no single person other than farmers and pensants and a stray music master framping to a school to give lessons. The Westerwald differs from the surcounding country in several respects. The houses are half-timbered and thatched, with huge sloping roofs, and many posess curious inscriptions over the door-Vways." The remoteness of the district prives a pleasing simplicity to the people, whose menfolk, young and old, readily cap " the stranger. The farm girls, too, many of them of mervellous bone uld sinew, of amazonian proportions in-Goodall. Both were introduced by Herr, deed, dress their hair to-day much as REMOTE VILLAGES.

In these remote villages, often far removed from water, may still be seenwhat I have remarked nowhere else, in his part of Germany—the enormous billnooks which are kept for the purpose of bulling down houses in the event of a ire, thus staying the progress of a conlagration. These billhooks are usually housed in the open under a long shed. They have, or used to have, their councerpart in Japan, where they were employed for a like purpose.

The walk proceeds by way of Neunkirchen, Herchen (beautifully situated in M M Deer,-Wong Keng he valley of the Sieg), Kloster Mariinthal (a very lovely and retired spot, where the brothers may be met telling. heir beads in its shady groves), Hachenourg (where the Burgermeister and Herr Doctor Josef Lohr were invited to meet the party, and where a pleasant if late wening was spent), Mariemberg, Selters, leustadt a. d. Wied and Konigswater, hus bringing the walker back to the anks of the Rhine through some of the best parts of the Sieben gebirge, The interest of the walk is greatly enhanced by a very comprehensive, clear, and ably written guide, admirably illustrated (with four maps), which is also the work of Horr Frankfurter. Perhaps the only drawback is the dogs.

so unaccustomed are these to strangers that their attentions are both unwelcome and disconcerting. One of the party used to provide himself with sugar from ais morning coffee to placate the Brutes. But it is a curious fact that no dog in he Westerwald could be induced to take nke a piece of the knee of his woulds.

ARMY EFFICIENCY IN FRANCE. Five Generals Removed From Their

> Commands. Mancourre Errors.

Parts, Oct. 16. Serious and severe measures to ensure military efficiency were taken aby the French Government this morning. Three generals commanding army corps in the Bouth, where the grand maneuvres took place this autumn, have been retired. A general commanding a division and another commanding a brigade in the same district have also been retired, and the same measure has been taken against two colonels commanding two infantry regiments in the same district. In the ense of four of these officers, two generals and two colonels, the polite fiction is put up that they have asked to retire. In the case of the other officers there is no polite fletion, and they are compulsorily put, either on the retired list or on half-pay-" retraite " -- or " disponibilito "-the difference being that officers on the latter list may be called up again eventually for active service, whereas those on the former list cannot. Finally, one of the commanders of army corps is not only compulsorily retired. But sont before a council of inquiry for a breach of discipline.

THE RETIRED OFFICERS.

The Generals retired are: General of Division-or, as we should say, Liout-General-Courbebaisse, Military Governor of Lyons, commanding the 14th Army Corps.

General of Division Plagnol, commanding the 17th Army Corps.

General of Division Faurie, commanding the 18th Army Corps. General Basset, commanding the 31st

Major-General Alva, commanding the 72nd Brigade.

The general who is to be tried by his peers for breach of discipline is the commander of the 16th Army Corps, General Faurie. By the same decree the successors of the above generals in their posts were appointed.

These are severe, and, some might say, ruthless measures to take against officers in high command. The fact that the Council of Ministers, under the prosidency of M. Poincare, took shom this morning, if not without hesitation; all events without mitigation, shows that they were necessary. The High Council of War, as you know, yesterday in their first match, as R.H.S. scarcely reported on these cases." The generals now punished were found, it seems, to be incompetent, presumably owing to age, during the last grand maracuvres in South-Western France. One is said to have blundered so badly in reading the army ordnance maps that he lost count of the positions of the troops he commanded. Another's orders to the Army Service Corps were so confused that big score against Glasgow H S., but they they could not be carried out, and the strong behind, and will suffer when commissariat arrangements broke down completely. The judgment passed upon these commanders by the High Council of War, and confirmed by the Minister of War, is a drastic one. But it is better to strike at once, and nothing would have been gained by indulgence and concoalment. The measures taken are the more dramatic and pathetic because three of the generals now dismissed saw the Minister of War yesterday, and pleaded with him not to cut short their military careers. All three hold a distinguished record. One was only 60 this year, the other 62, the third 44. All three had fought gallantly in 1870; when youngest of them, General Faurie, was a boy of 17. The Minister could only listen to them, sympathise with them, and say that the cause of military efficiency must go before any other. GENERAL FAURIE'S PHOTEST.

None of the officers thus "sacked "that is the real word for it-have complained except one. General Fauris has put himself in a bad case. He wrote, and himself published in the papers, a letter to the Minister of War, protesting in violent terms against his retirement before that retirement had been officially signed. He thus committed a gross breach of military discipline, especially in an army corps commander. The Council of Inquiry " which will try him will be constituted by five brother officers senior to him. He made his case worse still by hinting that he was dismissed because he was a Republican general, thus tainting the army with politics, which must be the bane of every army which it is allowed to affect, and which has often been that of the French army. We already find Royalists exulting because the insubordinate general calls himself a Ropublicars, and Socialists denouncing the measures taken by the War Office as having been suggested by an assistant-chief of the headquarters staff. But Socialists-and Royalistsemit to state that the Chief of the Headquarters Staffer General Joffre, "who, without doubt, took to delight in recommending the incasures adopted against several of his immediate subordinates. and about whom I happen to know a good deal personally, is quite as Republican a general as General Fauric may be, and that he certainly would not have kept General the Marquis de Curieres de Castelnau by him as his assistant if he had found that the latter's political prejudices affected his judgment.

A politico-military campaign must be expected now on both political sides. Let us hope it will not, as before, and after the Dreyfus case, impair French inilitary efficiency. The stringent measures taken seem to show that the present Government means to place that cause above any other consideration.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

EDINBURGH, October 14.

The principal struggle in Rugby was between Watsonians and Edinburgh Academicals. So important was the fixture, that Angus travelled all the way from Liverpool to assist the Big School, and his presence undoubtedly was responsible; for their comparative easy v ctory. In conjunction with Bowie and Pearson, he carried through many of his old time delightful movements. Sloan was the best man on the Academical side, and International Maxwell was conspicuous among the forwards. It cannot be said that Edinburgh University covered themselves with glory deserved to be beaten; but then the students are not yet shaken together, and their team must have been pretty much an experiment. national colebration at the completion of the Canal The Canal is conceded to be the greatest engineering triumph of the race, and one pregnant with wide economic results to the English people, and, despite any squabble over tolls, is sentimentally a matter in which the English people should take much pride. The Exposition represents the greatest of Bay efforts by the Pacific Coast people, and upon it an expenditure is being incurred greater than that of any other American exposition.

"As to the economic value to the British trader of being properly represented in this Exposition, while the British trade with the Pacific slope has not been hitherto particularly large, it must be patent that this. has been due to inaccessibility, now remedied by the Canal Severa factors should be borne in mind regarding the economic situation of this territory. The Pacific slope is com the rest of North America by' United States settlement in Hankow. 1,500 miles of desert and mountains. Its products are in mass raw material, particularly cereals, fruit, timber, and oil. The region, owing to the lack bladequate coal and iron deposits, is not, ever likely to become, a manufacturing center. The cost of goods transported across this 1,500 to 2,000 miles from eastern American manufacturing centres is greater than from Europe by sea via the Canal. This region will seek sea-borne markets for its raw material, and these will be paid for by the import by sen-borne manufactured goods. While Mr. Hoover dwells upon the advantages European, and especially English, traders will have on the the Pacific shores over the land borne trade of the Eastern States. The Times particularly emphasises the sentimental side of the question and scores the Asquith Government for ignoring it. Thus we read:

"We have already expressed our conviction that the Government are extremely ill-advised in refusing to Noon-Hongkorg and South China extremely ill-advised in refusing to Steam Fisheries Co. COMMENT OF CHINA.

(From Our Cum Correspondent.)

London, October 14.

Changes in China are attracting attention here, engressed as we may be in sport, the Home Rule Bill or the projected land legislation. The "Westminster Gazette" editorially says :-- " If the character of a nation may be judged by its plays, the new theatre at Canton marks a definite step in the progress of Chins, i For the Chinese play as we saw it recently in London has given place to modern drama, in which the yellow jacket and the pigtail are only infurniture are affected, and the play itself is a story of triump-hant Socialism and emancipated feet. It is entirely acted by women, who are apparently all advanced Suffragettes. We may regret the passing of the Chinese play and the yellow jacket and pigtail and the property man, but Manchester and Brad-ford will rejoice at the new drama. For if it be a sign of the times, it means that China is putting off her old garments and taking to the fashions of the West, and

That it means that China wants much Mills more than cloths and cotton Mr. Edwin J. manufacturers that they must make the most of the present opportunites to make their Western wares known to the eager Chinese. I do not remember any recent articles that have been more extensively quoted than these." Mr. Dingle in the "Giobe" advocated the establishment of a Bureau of Commerce to keep our manufacturers informed of the opportunities and special requirements of foreign markets. What would be equally valuable in my coinion, would be an official Chinese bureau in London for that purpose, so far as it affects the new Republic.

Two deaths of former officials in the East have occurred during the last few days. Mr. Henry, Charles J. Kopson, formerly Commissioner of the Chinese Imperial Customs, died on Saturday at Niton, Isle of Wight, in his seventirth year. On the same day Mr. Earnest Alfred Griffiths, Late H.B.M. Consulat Shimonoseki. Japan, died suddenly at the Tavistock Hotel. Covent Garden.

The question propounded at the Church Congress by a noble Marquis, "Why ask the agricultural working classes to ask for bethe when they do not want builts ! is (remarks a correspondent) a partial refutation of the saying that one half of the world des not know how the the other half lives. CHINESE POLITICS. LONDON PRESS COMMENT.

LONDON, Nov. 8" The Times in a special article headed" The Iron Hand in Peking, discusses the dissolution of the Kuo-Signor Ulivi, the inventor of the machine by which, according to his claim, ammunition depois can be blown up at a distance. in now in Florence. He has given an explanation of his invention to a newspaper representative, stating during the interview that the machine projects to any distance rays, called F-rays, at speed of 360,000 metres a minute. These rays, declares Signor Ulivi, have the power of causing electric sparks upon all metallic objects with which they come in contact. .

When the F-rays are directed upon a battleship, electric sparks flash out everywhere in the exterior and interior of the vessel, and the sparks occurring in the of the ammunition.

Signor Ulivi has made a number experiments, which, he states, have resulted in success. He owes his invention to While he was endeavouring in his laboratory at Clichy to transform solar light into electricity he attempted to produce electro-magnetic vibrations, and found that the undulations caused metallic objects in the labora ory to sound on the production of a spark of great intensity. Then he studied the new

of his first practical experiment :- "One evening I thought of projecting the Farys troyed, and I escaped by a miracle. that time I made further experiments, and having obtained permission to embark the presence of a number of French officers. Henceforth I was sure of the terrible efficacy of my machine. I have come to Italy to offer my invention to the Italian, Experiments will-take place at Spezzia, and several old ships and torredo-bosts will be utilised.

THE SCIENTIFIC VIEW.

Many years ago Professor Becquerel made discoveries about the tricks and habits of an electric spark. He found that it sent out rays of quite a different kind from those that had been hitherto called heat or light. Since then the investigation of rays has been carried out in many ways. X rays and the three different kinds of rays sent out by the salts of the element radium may be instanced. They are quite little ones. MR. URS AS LORD PRESIDENT. Mr J. Urs, Lord Advocate, is appointed President of the Scottish Court of Session, in room of Lord Dunedin, who is slevated to the new and distinguished position in the House of Luds created by the Appellate Court Act. Mr. Ure is a sound lawyer, until of late years he was an industrious a vocate, and no doubt he will make a good judge. But outside the legal profession he is much better known as a con spicuously active party politican with a passion for stump cratory. Libera's everywhere learned the news of his promotion with regret. He was one of the fighting stalwarts. To him a day without a political meeting appeared as deplorable as a day without a Free Trade speech is said to have been regarded by Cobden and Bright. His crusading zeal carried him from Land's End to John o' Groat's and it is doubtful if there is any man in politics who has done more of the spade work of party propaganda. With gifts which might have raised him to Parliamentary eminence, he chose to devote his great physical and mental energies to platform work to such an extent that latterly is became an obsession with him. Even in the most exciting times at Westminster. Mr Ure was sponding his days in railway trains and his nights at public meetings in out-of-theway parts of the country. of a large audience. The surprise is that he has brought himself to exchange them for a seat on the bench. Unfortunately, on the public platform it was too much his practice to resort to extremes of dislectic methods. It is not possible to forget in particular one unfortunate episode in his political career. when, in directing an attack upon his political opponents in relation to old age pensions, he allowed himself to use latitude of language which probably he afterwards regretted, though the strain of controversy compelled him to defend it. It will be remembered that Mr. Balfour, usually one of the calmest and quietest of speakers, made "a strong attack upon Mr. Ure's methods. ammunition magazines cause the explosion | He charged Mr. Ure with committing a "double crime" in "suggesting that old age pensions would be in peril should the general election result in the return of a Unionist Government." This, said Mr. Balfour, was an extraordinary exercise of "mendacious imagination," and he clared that Mr. Ure had "dishonoured the profession to which he belongs, the office which he holds, and the country in which phenomenon, and succeeded in completing he was born." The strack created a great sensation, and was replied to in the Signor Ulivi gave the following account House of Commons in a memorable speech. It is Mr. Ure's reputation at the bar that Senhor Felix Diaz, who was stabled sgainst the gas meter. I did so, and the he is seen at his best when his case is most the neck, was taken to the hos- meter blew up. My laboratory was des- desperate, and that he has won more forlorn hopes than any advocate of his time. So it was on that occasion. For over an upon the yacht Lady Henriette at Trou- hour, without the aid of a single note, ville, I blew up three mines in the port, in and without once pausing or stumbling, he held the attention of a crowded and excited House. Irrespective of the merits of the case and they divided the House as sharply then as they do now-the speech was undoubtedly one of

Memory of Lord Kelvin. APPRECIATIONS OF KELVIN.

Glasgow was happily inspired in schooss ing Mr. Balfour and Mr. Birrell. Their speeches, each characteristic of individual poise blended, without effort, and were complementary the one to the other. Mr. Birrell sketched, with the light touch distinguishing his style, the career of Lord Kalvin, and alluded to "the great company" of scientific thinkers and investigators who without mean jealousies or angry distribes pursued the same path to knowledge some times, to use the sublime language of Kep ler, rethinking or thinking over again the very thoughts of the Creator of this universe, and sometimes by their tireless labours and unending experiments doing something to lighten the vast and accumu lating burden of human suffering and misery." Lord Keivin, Mr. Birrell said was "in many respects a most happy man, for he had in no small degree a double orft. He was a practical inventor no less than a thinker." Mr. Balfour took up the theme where Mr. Birrell laid it down. Starting with the statement that Lord Kelvin his own person showed how close was the connection, between theory and practice," he went on to explain the nature of Lord Kelvin's work and to estimate the debt that his own generation dincoverer. "It was," he said, "surely one of those falicitous coincidences which have never occurred before, and which were not likely evet to coour sasin?" that the greatest master of scientific theory of his day was the leading spirit in submarine telegraphy, was the benefactor in many wers of navigation, and that the compass he invented should be in use all over the world. Rut. Mr. Ballour added. Lord Kelvin's real life was neither his CARROC As an inventor nor his record as a man of business, gr at though his success in both spheres was ... His most important work lay in the direction of pure science. is He was preoccupied inconsuntly with the wo gravest problems which a man of science could have before his mind name.
